We believe that our humanity is what connects us to each other. Regardless of our race, sex, gender, or religion, we know that we have the right to respect in the spaces we share. Only through mutual respect, acknowledging our differences, and understanding one another can we evolve and create a community and society that benefits us all.